The South Park Site Steward Program (SPSSP) is a mission-based and team-based volunteer program. While dues are not required, it does demand real and significant commitment from its volunteers. Each volunteer who is monitoring a cultural property is responsible for ensuring that the site will be better protected during the course of their involvement with it. Furthermore, volunteers should not disclose these locations once they decide to leave the Program. This is no small commitment given the unique and unspoiled nature of Colorado's cultural resources.

We ask that you carefully consider your ability to be a successful Site Steward. Among volunteer opportunities, site stewardship is incredibly rewarding and fun, but can involve challenges as well. The following list of questions is designed to provide you with an awareness of the responsibility involved, as well as the opportunity to confirm your understanding. Please note: answering "no" to any of these questions will NOT eliminate you from consideration.

In order to monitor a site, you will be given the specific location of that property. Do you understand that you may not give this information to anyone, and that the location information for other sites may not be given to you?

Yes No

You will be required to sign a statement of data confidentiality and an agreement not to carry firearms while performing Site Steward duties. Will you honor these requirements?

Yes No

If the property you monitor suffers natural or human-made damage, you may be asked to represent SPSSP during any extra investigative/repair visits to that property. Would it be possible to modify your schedule for such circumstances?

Yes No

While uncommon, some volunteers may come across suspicious persons engaging in possible criminal activity in the field. While SPSSP advocates avoidance, if such a circumstance was unavoidable could you personally interact with such suspicious persons?

Yes No

If a criminal case were brought against looters of the property you monitor, would you be comfortable serving as a sworn witness for the prosecution?

Yes No

Have you ever been investigated, or charged, for a violation against cultural resources, property or firearms laws (ordinances, regulations, statutes, etc.)?

Yes No

Would you consider enrollment in continuing education classes, workshops, and/or other SPSSP offerings in order to develop your stewardship skills?

Yes No

The work may require use of your own vehicle, camera, and/or other equipment to properly monitor sites. Is this acceptable to you?

Yes No

The work will involve paper-based and online reporting of monitoring activities. Is this acceptable to you?

Yes No

SPSSP sites range in elevation from 9500' to 13,000'. Do you have limitations regarding hiking or working at certain elevations?

Yes No

If yes, please explain limitations

Some sites are within a short, non-strenuous walking distance to reach, some require moderate hiking, and others require a 4x4 vehicle and moderate-strong hiking ability to reach. Please describe your preference for types of sites you would like to monitor.

By signing this application/questionnaire and agreement, I certify that the information provided is true, correct, and complete to the best of my knowledge. I acknowledge that any misrepresentation or falsification of the information herein will result in rejection of this application. This information will be kept private and confidential by the SPSSP.
